I. CRIMINAL

ORGANIZED CRIME UNIT

The Organized Crime Unit handles complex investigations and prosecutions of criminal gang activities, firearms and narcotics trafficking, and violent felonies from serious assaults to serial murders. Prosecutions will be built upon a wide range of investigative tools, including for example wiretaps, undercover operations, and the use of the grand jury. Prosecutors in the Organized Crime Unit will also be part of the Attorney General's statewide Organized Crime Task Force, and will work with assistant state's attorneys and law enforcement from counties all across the state.

MEDICAID FRAUD CONTROL UNIT

The Medicaid Fraud Control Unit (MFCU) uses a strike force model to investigate and prosecute fraud by Medicaid providers in Maryland. While working with teams of attorneys, auditors and investigators, an intern will have the opportunity to work on civil and criminal cases involving health care fraud and also abuse and neglect of vulnerable individuals in facilities that receive state funds. Additionally, an intern will experience how investigative teams work collaboratively with federal investigators and U.S. Attorneys in cases that may involve multiple states.

An intern can expect to do a mix of legal research, review of evidence (including medical records), observing witness interviews and attending court proceedings. Much emphasis is placed on learning the do's and don'ts of the Maryland Medicaid program in order to investigate and evaluate the worthiness of case referrals to the MFCU. An added plus is the exposure to the criminal grand jury process as well as civil procedures for discovery.

INSURANCE FRAUD

The Insurance Fraud Division of the Attorney General's Office is responsible for investigating and prosecuting suspected acts of insurance fraud and related theft throughout the 23 counties, and city of Baltimore, located in the State of Maryland. The Division works closely with the Maryland Insurance Administration, the Maryland State Police, and the special investigation units of insurance companies.

The Insurance Fraud Division uses a number of investigative techniques including: grand jury subpoenas and testimony; electronic surveillance; field surveillance; forensic auditing and accounting; witness interviews; proffer sessions; and numerous database searches. Law clerks working in the Insurance Fraud Division routinely accompany an Assistant Attorney General to a variety of Circuit Court proceedings including: criminal arraignments; scheduling conferences; motions hearings; trials; sentencing hearings; and violations of probation hearings. Law clerks responsibilities range from research and writing to participating in trial preparation and support.

CRIMINAL APPEALS

The Criminal Appeals Division handles all direct and collateral appeals arising from criminal convictions across the State of Maryland. The Division also represents the State in all habeas corpus cases that are filed by state prisoners in federal court.

Interns in the Criminal Appeals Division provide research assistance to the 17 Assistant Attorneys General in the Division. This research typically involves constitutional criminal procedure, rules of evidence, and trial and post-conviction rights. Interns may be asked to quickly locate a case supporting a particular legal proposition, to produce a detailed written memorandum summarizing complex legal research, or anything in between.

Additionally, each intern is given the opportunity to handle at least one criminal appeal from start to finish. Working closely with an Assistant Attorney General in the Division, the intern reads the circuit court transcripts, researches the issues raised in the appellant's brief, and drafts the State's response. The goal is for interns to leave the Division with a completed appellate brief that can be used as a writing sample.

Although the Division is happy to welcome traditional single-season interns, we also encourage students to consider a two-season commitment, for example, spring and summer. This allows students to gain more in-depth appellate experience, and participate in the Court of Appeals' term, which runs from September through June.

II. CONSUMER PROTECTION

CONSUMER PROTECTION

The Consumer Protection Division provides a mediation and arbitration service to consumers to help resolve complaints against businesses and health insurance carriers, registers health clubs and new home builders, enforces consumer protection laws and produces a wide array of consumer education materials.

The HEAU also engages in legislative initiatives to advance consumer protections in the healthcare marketplace and participates as a voice for consumers in healthcare-related meetings and workgroups.

The Division prepares and coordinates legislative proposals, testimony, reports, briefings, posture statements, policy statements, information papers, and other matters relating to the provision of information to the General Assembly.

The Division is responsible for the fostering of positive working relationships between the Office of the Attorney General and the General Assembly.

OPINIONS AND ADVICE

The Division of Opinions & Advice prepares the official Opinions of the Attorney General and otherwise oversees the legal advice that the Office provides to its State agency clients. The topics that the Division is called upon to address run the gamut of legal issues, from the preemptive reach of State laws regulating pawnbrokers to the First Amendment implications of personal leave policies. In addition, the Division has developed expertise in election law and open government issues, including the implementation of the Open Meetings Act and the Public Information Act. The small size of the Division (3 1/2 attorneys) ensures a collegial working environment in which everyone collaborates to solve the most difficult interpretive issues that our Office handles.

IV. CIVIL

CIVIL LITIGATION

The Civil Litigation Division handles major litigation in which the State, its agencies, or officers, is a party. This includes defending the State and State employees in State and federal trial and appellate courts as well as filing suits on behalf of the State. The Civil Litigation Division is responsible for reviewing all briefs that are filed by the Office of the Attorney General in civil appeals in all federal and State courts. The Civil Division also provides assistance, coordination, and advice to other divisions within the Office of the Attorney General in connection with trial and appellate litigation being handled throughout the office.

Over the past five years, the Antitrust Division has recovered over $12 million for the State and Maryland consumers in illegal overcharges. Lawyers in this division work closely with their counterparts in other states, the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Justice.

UNIT DESCRIPTIONS: AGENCIES

DEPARTMENT OF AGING

The Attorney General's Office at the Maryland Department of Aging is a small unit so there is potential exposure to all elements of government practice: drafting regulations, personnel issues, analyzing legislation, assisting with IT procurement, etc. While there is not a lot of litigation, we never know what we will be called upon to do during any given week so the Department of Aging is a good place to see and learn what is required to be a jack of all legal trades. Plus, you will know that whatever you are assigned, you will be supporting the agency whose statutory mandate is to assist Maryland's elders.

DEPARTMENT OF BUDGET AND MANAGEMENT

The Office of the Attorney General that represents and advises the Department of Budget and Management is staffed with 12 attorneys and 8 support staff. The office represents DBM in a variety of subject matters that include the State operating and and capital budgets; formulating and administering Statewide personnel policies; administering the health and life insurance benefits program for State employees and retirees; supervising the procurement of services; and the collection and litigation of most debts owed to State agencies (with some exceptions, such as taxes). The staff is primarily located at 300 West Preston Street in Baltimore.

CORRECTIONAL LITIGATION

Almost wholly federal court practice, Correctional Litigation defends against prisoner civil rights cases at both the appellate and trial levels. Issues focus upon religious rights, medical care, use of force, failure to protect, the ADA and Rehab. Act, denial of due process and all aspects of prisoner life. A lot of work, a lot of interesting cases. Correctional Litigation engages in heavy motions practice, as well as challenging trial work, discovery and mediation.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

The MSDE unit provides legal advice and guidance to the Maryland State Board of Education, the Maryland State Department of Education, and the Maryland School for the Deaf on a wide range of issues. The unit represents these public agencies in administrative and court litigation. Attorneys practice in all areas of public education including: special education, correctional education, adult vocational rehabilitation, vending program for the blind, student rights and responsibilities, teacher rights and responsibilities, school financing, school administration, public library administration, interscholastic athletics, school construction, and child care licensing and enforcement. Student interns have the opportunity to work directly with the unit's attorneys learning the day to day functions of a public agency legal office. Interns draft memos to the State Board of Education, research novel and cutting edge legal issues and write advice memos, participate in litigation preparation, and observe client meetings and client counseling.

DEPARTMENT OF THE ENVIRONMENT

The Office of the Attorney General (OAG) at the Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE) is made up of about 25 attorneys who provide complete legal support for all aspects of the MDE's work, including pollution control in the areas of air, water, waste, sediment and storm water control. Work in the OAG includes initiating enforcement actions and other litigation, providing advice and counsel, drafting legislation, and reviewing new and revised regulations. Law clerks/interns engage in legal and policy research, litigation and pre-litigation support, developing case strategies, and other projects. Law clerks/interns may attend meetings with state and federal agencies, legislators and citizen groups. Law clerks are also invited to attend OAG in-house work practice group meetings and other educational training programs held throughout the year. During summer internships, law clerks also participate in a 1/2 day moot court trial where they represent the State (MDE) or the defendant (alleged violator) in an environment matter, give opening statement and closing arguments, examine and cross-examine witnesses and introduce exhibits. Each intern is also provided with a mentor to assist in preparing the case for trial.

The office also represents legislators, legislative staff agencies and on occasion defends legislation whose constitutionality is challenged in court. The office provides legal counsel to all legislative agencies, including the Department of Legislative Services and the Office of Legislative Audits.

Law clerks will have an opportunity to work on a variety of subject areas, and work in an often fast-paced and exciting environment. Strong legal research and writing skills are required. Position requires commute to Annapolis, but parking is provided.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

The Department of Health (MDH) regulates the delivery of medical care throughout Maryland and assists more than 500,000 citizens each year in securing needed services. The Office of the Attorney General represents MDH in a wide variety of legal proceedings ranging from Medicaid eligibility hearings to enforcement actions against health care providers. The Attorney General also serves as legal advisor to more than 100 programs that fund and regulate the State's public and private health care system.

The Office of the Attorney General has two distinct roles in representing MDH. First, the Office serves as counselor to health care policy makers who design and administer State and federal programs. Second, attorneys specializing in health care litigation prosecute and defend the agency's regulatory, enforcement and entitlement decisions. Agency counselors advise program managers on legislative developments, regulation drafting and enforcement issues. Some attorneys serve onsite at MDH hospitals while others assist Maryland's statewide commissions and boards that license the health care professions and administer Maryland's health care reimbursement programs.

HEALTH BENEFIT EXCHANGE

The General Assembly created the Maryland Health Benefit Exchange in 2011 to design and operate a healthcare marketplace under the newly enacted federal Affordable Care Act. The online marketplace where consumers and small businesses compare, shop and enroll in health care will launch just its third open-enrollment period for individuals on November 1, 2015.

The candidate selected will work with the agency's three assistant attorneys general in a fast-paced environment where novel legal questions are common. The group provides advice on issues including program eligibility, privacy and security of data and enrollees' personal information, and contracting issues unique to a new agency exempt from the State's general procurement law. Assignments may include legal memoranda, regulation drafting, and quick, responsive legal research. Much of the work is healthcare and IT-focused, and while litigation surfaces from time-to-time, it is not a frequent component of the group's work.

HEALTH OCCUPATIONS PROSECUTION AND LITIGATION

The Health Occupations Prosecution and Litigation Division (HOPL) is a group of attorneys engaged in the practice of health law. Inherent in the division's name are the two facets of HOPL's mission: prosecution and litigation. One team of attorneys serves as prosecutors in administrative disciplinary cases against members of health professions regulated by State licensing boards. The law clerks will assist HOPL's prosecutors as they build cases, draft charges, and litigate matters vital to the safety and well-being of Marylanders, such as fraud, prescription drug violations, professional misconduct, and substandard care. The other team of attorneys represents the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene in a broad variety of civil litigation to safeguard the Department's mission to improve the health of the State's citizens. For the law clerk, this might mean assisting an attorney who is defending a State hospital against a medical malpractice claim, or assisting in the defense of civil rights case filed against the Department in federal court.

In addition to general legal advice and counsel pertinent to administration of a State agency, AAGs with MDP are involved in a wide range of unique land use and planning issues related to coordinating local land use policy with the State's smart growth initiatives, and are intricately involved in all transactional and related legal work necessary for administration of MHT's preservation programs.
